

Big Talk Homework

As you are aware, currently in class we are studying 'Friend or Foe' by Michael Morpurgo. Over the past week we have been reading about how the two main characters, Tucky and David, have discovered two German pilots who have crashed landed in the moor. One of the pilots has saved David's life which presents the children with a conundrum - do they help the Germans to flee or do they report them to the local guards?

Tomorrow, all children in class 4 will be completing their Big Write in which they will explain whether the German Airmen were actually classed as David and Tuckys friend or foe. They will be asked to base their decision of the actions of the Germans during the course of the text.

To help them with their writing, please discuss the following questions:

- What have the Germans done to act friendly?
- Why could they be classed as foe?
- How would you feel if they were in Tucky and David's place?
- How might you write down your argument in a logical way?

Any discussion that you have will support your child's writing tomorrow and may be shared in class.

Many thanks,

Mrs Kuffour
